

Disability Retirement Benefits Application Form

Use this form to apply for a MEPP disability pension. Two types of disability pensions are available. A partial disability pension may be granted when medical evidence indicates that a member is no longer capable of performing the regular duties of his or her job. A total disability pension may be granted when medical evidence indicates that the member is permanently unable to engage in any form of gainful employment. The disability assessment will be based on a combination of medical evidence and pension legislation.
